

YOUTH WHO STOLE FOR HIS FIANCEE IS PUT ON PROBATION

Theodore C. Linton, Langhorne, Given Chance By Court to Make Good

JUDGE LECTURES HIM Tells Defendant That If Girl Is Willing to Take Chance So Is The Court

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 19.—A well-known Langhorne youth was given a chance yesterday in criminal court by Judge Hiram H. Keller after he had pleaded guilty to stealing a radio and other household articles to furnish a home that he was preparing for the girl he is engaged to marry.

Courage of his fiancée to stand by him in time of trouble with abiding faith that her lover had learned a lesson and will make good, had much to do with the Court's disposition of the case.

Judge Keller, in pronouncing sentence, stated to Theodore C. Linton, twenty-two, the accused youth, that if his fiancée was willing to take a chance the Court would do the same thing in this instance.

Linton pleaded guilty to stealing a radio from a South Langhorne store last October and some time later an electric iron, an electric washer, ironing board and vacuum cleaner from another store.

The property was stolen at night. Linton broke into the stores and stole the goods himself and hauled it to the home of his fiancée in Frankford where he told her that he had purchased it for their new home. They were engaged to be married in April, and are at the present time buying a home in Bridgeburg.

Linton told Judge Keller that he has been employed steadily for six years by one of the largest automobile concerns in Philadelphia as a mechanic, making from $18 to $20 a week.

"I guess the money was not enough for me to buy the things that I wanted," Linton told the Court. "I cannot explain why I ever did such a thing. I told my friend that I had purchased the things for our new home."

Linton's father, Frank W. Linton, a reputable business man of Langhorne, who lives retired, was at a loss to explain his son's actions. "He never made a mis-step before this," the father told Judge Keller.

To tell of the young man's good reputation up until the time of this offense, such well-known men as Pearson Candy, Horace G. Mitchell, a bank cashier; Rev. J. C. Zook, a Methodist clergyman; and Dr. Henry Lovett, of Langhorne, testified.

The last witness was Miss Margaret Worrell, 4635 Dittman street, Frankford, to whom Linton is engaged to be married. Nervously she told Judge Keller that she was willing to give Theodore a chance to make good and had not broken off their engagement.

Representing Linton was Howard I. James, of Bristol, who appealed to the Court for leniency.

"Never in many years of the practice of my profession have I come across a case as strange as this one," Mr. James declared.

"I have heard of people stealing because of hunger and for gain, but never have I heard of a young man with a reputation that has never been questioned, stealing for the love of a girl he is going to marry."

In pronouncing sentence Judge Keller remarked in part:

"Your case, Linton, is a strange one indeed. I could sentence you to a minimum term of from ten to twenty years for what you have done. It is your first offense. You have taken a young lady for your future life partner and it is to your credit that you have been able to muster together such reputable persons as you did in your behalf. It is the policy of the law not to condemn but to help you when it is deemed wise. If Miss Worrell is willing to take a chance on you, so is the Court. I'll suspend sentence and place you on probation for a period of two years."

BENSALEM SCHOOL'S NEW AUDITORIUM USED MUCH

Splendid Assembly Program Is Given in The New Section

GAMES PLAYED THERE

BENSALEM TOWNSHIP HIGH SCHOOL, Cornwells Heights, Feb. 19.—The first assembly program of the Bensalem Township high school to be held in the new auditorium took place Friday afternoon, with a splendid program.

Supervising Principal Samuel K. Faust, was in charge, and a number of the pupils added to the enjoyment of the afternoon.

A Bible reading was given by Mr. Faust, this being followed by a salute to the flag, and the singing of two verses of "America" by Miss Catherine L. Helfrich.

Lincoln's Gettysburg Address by Francis Williams was well given and received with pleasure. A rendition of "Oh, Captain, My Captain," was given by Sydney Smith, who also told how Walt Whitman came to write the well-loved poem and mentioned its connection with the martyred president.

A piano solo, "The Gypsy," was given by Miss Ethel Hartman; followed by an account of the origin of St. Valentine's Day by Miss Margaret Harland. A song, words and music for which were written by Harold Fitch, a senior, was sung by Miss Helfrich. This result of the student's ability as a composer pleased the entire assembly, and the number was well given. The supervising principal then told the group of pupils some interesting things about the new portion of the school building, mentioning the ventilating system, etc.

Bensalem high boys' basketball team lost to Langhorne quintet last Friday, when a game was played in the new "gym" here.

The local lads showed signs of improvement in defensive work, but Langhorne players proved superior in making shots count. The score at half time was 20 to 2. The final count was 44 to 10.

The Bensalem girls won over the New Jersey Institute for the Deaf Wednesday afternoon, February 12th; and on Friday added another victory to their list when they played Langhorne sextet. Score of the latter game was 52 to 2.

Bensalem high boys played a game with Southampton high players yesterday afternoon; while in the evening both the boys' and girls' teams opposed basketball players from the alumni association.

Bristol Man Must Stay In Jail Until He Gets Bond

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 19.—After deliberating a short time a jury yesterday acquitted Andrew Moore, colored, of Bristol, tried before Judge Keller on a serious charge brought by a mentally deficient youth living in Bristol.

"The jury has acquitted you I am sorry to say," remarked Judge Keller as Moore stood before the Court. "You are not a safe man to be at large under any conditions. I will place you under $1,000 bond to keep the peace for a period of one year."

Moore informed Judge Keller that he could not raise the bond money.

"Well, then you will have to sit in jail," the Court advised him.

John Nagurny, Jr., of Chalfont, was acquitted of a serious criminal charge brought by the mother of a Chalfont girl yesterday, but the jury found him guilty of another criminal offense. Judge William Thomas imposed a fine of $50 and costs.

Robert Bossert, Paul and Charles Aston, of Green Lane, were acquitted yesterday by a jury of a charge of riot and assault and battery alleged to have been committed at a dance hall near Quakertown. The jury directed that the defendants pay the costs.

PEOPLE ARE JUST BEGINNING TO SUSPECT HOW TO LIVE, SAYS EDISON--BELIEVES THE STANDARD OF LIVING WILL BE MUCH HIGHER

Gives Interesting and Characteristically Edisonian Replies To A Barrage of Questions—Rubber Experiment Job Is Most Complex Proposition He Has Ever Struck—He Likes It

By James L. Kilgallen

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 19.—Thomas A. Edison believes man uses only a very small part of his brain.

He thinks people are "just beginning to suspect" how to live. He does not know whether human beings exist on other planets.

His formula for happiness is "work."

He believes the standard of living in America will be very much higher, eventually.

He has never been "thrilled" by any of his great achievements.

The world renowned inventor, interviewed today by International News Service at his laboratory here, where he is making intensive research work on rubber production plants, gave interesting and characteristically Edisonian replies to a barrage of questions asked him.

"What was the hardest job you ever encountered?" Mr. Edison was asked.

"This rubber experiment job is the most complex proposition I ever struck, and that's the reason I like it," he replied.

He revealed he still is putting in long, hard hours. He said he goes to work in his laboratory at 9 a. m. and frequently works until 6 p. m. Sometimes he works at his house from 7 p. m. until 10 or 11 p. m. He glanced at a cot in his laboratory as he talked. It was tucked under a table filled with all kinds of mysterious looking bottles.

"Next to rubber what was your toughest scientific task?" he was asked.

"Well, I think the quadrex was a hard proposition," Edison answered, thoughtfully. "The electric light was hard, too, because so many things had to be done to make it a commercial success."

He did not mention the phonograph, which he invented, nor the motion picture camera, the stock ticker and numerous other devices. The quadrex was a telegraph achievement. The machinery permitted two messages to go each way over a single wire at the same time.

"What do you regard as your greatest scientific achievement, the one that did the most for mankind?" was another question.

Edison replied that he could not work at anything that he did not believe would prove useful. So then the reporter asked him what was his most "useful" invention, and this was his answer:

"I don't know. It depends upon the point of view. I suppose the electric lighting system was the most useful." Asked his formula for happiness he succinctly replied, "Work," and asked his formula for success he reiterated, (Continued on Page Four)

GIVES BRACKEN POST PICTORIAL RECORD

Lester D. Thorne Makes Presentation at Meeting Here Last Night

A PERMANENT RECORD

Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion, is the recipient of a pictorial record of one of its members placing a memorial wreath upon the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in France, on May 31st, 1929.

Presentation of the picture was made at the Post meeting held last evening at which time the presentation was made by Lester D. Thorne.

The record consists of three photographs in one large frame of black. The first photograph shows Mr. Thorne in front of the arch with the wreath in his hand. The second shows his placing the wreath on the tomb while the third depicts a general view of the tomb showing other decorations.

The pictures are neatly lettered as follows:

"Comrade Lester D. Thorne Placing Memorial Wreath on Tomb of Unknown Soldier—Arc De Triomphe, Paris, France, May 31, 1929, for Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion."

Mr. Thorne in making the presentation of the gift to the Post last night stated:

"Just about one year ago my wife and I started planning a trip to Europe. When it became known we were going, Past Commander Ray Smith, came and told me our Post had requested and commissioned me to place a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, Arc de Triomphe, Paris, France."

"We arrived in Paris on May 30th, Decoration Day, but too late in the evening to attend to it that day. The next morning, however, we had a wreath made and placed it on the Tomb. There were many others in memory of Legion Posts all over the world."

"In order to have a souvenir and remembrance of the occasion we took several snapshots. After returning home I showed them to Comrade Smith and it was suggested that they be enlarged and framed so that the Post might have on the walls of its beautiful new home a permanent record of the incident."

"It therefore gives me great pride and pleasure, Commander Downing, to present this picture to Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion."

The gift was accepted on behalf of the Post with a few appropriate remarks by Commander Downing.

Builds Fire Under Truck To Heat Motor On Cold Day

By the Stroller

You have often heard the story of the man who built a fire under his mule when the animal became stubborn and wouldn't go.

Well, Monday was a cold day and a certain huckster was seen to build a fire beneath his motor truck on Radcliffe street in an effort to warm up the motor.

Unlike the story of the fire and the mule in which it is said that the latter moved up a step and permitted the cart to burn behind him, the motor truck stood still.

But the owner sure was taking all kinds of chances with that blazing fire beneath his gasoline motor.

CROYDON GROCER SAYS ICE MAN WAS TO BLAME

Robert Reids Blames Ice Man For His Having Liquor In Store

PAYS FINE AND COSTS

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 19.—Robert

Reids, of Croydon, proprietor of a grocery store, blamed the ice man for his downfall yesterday. He pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor at his store. He told Judge Keller that a complaint was registered against him by the wife of an ice man. He told the Court that in order to get rid of the ice man, who stayed and talked at long intervals at his store, he gave him a drink of whiskey now and then. A fine of $100 and costs was imposed upon Reids.

"I have heard the ice man accused of lots of things but this is a new one," the court remarked.

John Stanton, proprietor of the Ne-shaminy Tea Room, Warrington township, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller yesterday to possessing liquor. He was fined $200 and costs. A small quantity of liquor was found under a board in the lunch room.

John Kaleda, of Langhorne, proprietor of the Callanan Hotel, pleaded guilty to possessing beer and gin at his hotel when it was raided by State Police on December 14, last year. Judge Keller fined him $300 and costs.

"You are paying a little extra for the gin you had in your possession," the Court told Kaleda.

Fred Cantz, of Philadelphia, who worked at the Rose Hill Club Inn, Bensalem township, as a chef just two hours before it was raided by State Police, recently, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller yesterday to possessing three half barrels of beer. The Court fined Cantz $50 and costs. He told Judge Keller he was brought there by the owner, Alfred Thomas, of Philadelphia, just two hours before the police arrived.

Christopher Cockett, proprietor of the South Langhorne Hotel, was fined $200 and costs yesterday by Judge Keller after he had pleaded guilty to possessing beer. It is the second time the place has been raided. Over a year ago Cockett's son was arrested as the proprietor of the place and was fined $200 and costs. He told Judge Keller that he did not know the beer that he purchased was "high-powered."

Robert Bombach, of New York City, pleaded guilty before Judge Thomas to a charge of operating an automobile while drunk in Morrisville. He was fined $200 and costs and given until May 5 to pay the fine. The Court directed that he enter in the sum of $1000 in his own recognition to have the fine paid by that time.

NOTED VETERAN OF CIVIL WAR DIES; AGE 86

Michael Dougherty Went Into Army When But A Youth

DISTINGUISHED RECORD

Saw Many Hardships and Suffered Privations in Southern Prisons

Michael Dougherty, one of the last Civil War veterans in this community, died today at 9.30 a. m. at his home at 324 Dorrance street in his 86th year.

Enlisting in the 13th Pennsylvania Cavalry at the outbreak of the war when little more than a half-grown boy, and remaining until the end of the war, he suffered hardships and privations that few others experienced and survived.

During the first two years of the war he saw much active service and was several times cited for bravery. He was presented with a gold medal by the Colonel of his regiment, afterwards Brigadier General M. Kerwin for bravery in carrying dispatches from General Mulroy's headquarters at the battle of Winchester, June 16, 1863, in the three days' fight.

He was also granted a medal of honor in accordance with an Act of Congress, which entitled him to membership in the Medal of Honor Legion, for most distinguished gallantry in action at Jefferson, Va., October 12, 1863. In making the award the Assistant Secretary of War used the following language:

"This soldier, at the head of a detachment of his company, dashed across an open field exposed to a deadly fire from the enemy and succeeded in dislodging them from an occupied house, which he and his comrades defended for several hours against repeated attacks, thus preventing the enemy from flanking the position of the Union forces."

It was, however, in his war prison experiences that Mr. Dougherty suffered almost unbelievable hardships, being confined for almost the entire last two years of the war in the most infamous war prisons of the South.

He was captured the first time in February, 1863, while on a scouting expedition with his regiment in the Shenandoah Valley, having had his horse shot under him at Strasburg, and with other members of his regiment was taken to Richmond and confined in Libby Prison. He remained there until May when he was exchanged and joined his regiment at Winchester.

He was again captured near Culpeper on October 12, 1863, and from that time until the end of the war was confined continuously in the principal war prisons of the South, including Pemberton, Barrett's, Libby and Andersonville. He was the sole survivor of 127 of his regiment captured at the same time, 122 dying at Andersonville.

Mr. Dougherty kept a diary of each day's experiences while in Southern war prisons and his account of the cruelty and privations suffered by himself and other Union prisoners, especially in Libby and Andersonville, Ga., was so interesting that a number of years ago he was kept busy answering invitations from the various organizations of the town to read them portions of the diary at their meetings. In 1908 he was prevailed upon to publish his diary in book form and after its publication he was in receipt of numerous requests from writers on this subject for copies, as it was considered an important addition to the war prison literature of the Civil War.

Mr. Dougherty is survived by six daughters, Mother M. Adolph and Sister Rose Margaret, of the Immaculate Heart of Mary Order, Mrs. James Lawler, Margaret, Rose and Elizabeth, and three sons, Alexander, Edward and Charles, also by his sister, Mrs. Margaret Callahan, of Buckley street, who is now in her 91st year.

Mr. Dougherty was born May 10, 1844, in Ireland, at the village crossroads, now known as Falacrach. He came to this country in 1859, coming direct to Bristol. Two sisters, previous to his coming had settled here, and after having joined them, his stay was brief, for in 1861 he enlisted in the Army.

On August 7, 1862, he became a member of Co. B, Second Irish Dragoons, consolidated at Harper's Ferry on September 25, 1862, with the 13th Pennsylvania Cavalry, under Captain Kerwin.

COMMUNITY GROWTH

Busy factories are as vital to the city and town as good crops and fair market prices are vital to the agricultural section. The manufacturing community—few American communities do not have one or more industries—does not appreciate the value of its factories until at business depression shuts them down and puts their many employees out of work.

Formerly the inland community was a group of houses, a store or two, a church and a school. Its purpose seemed to have been little more than a meeting and shopping place for nearby farmers and their families. Eventually, as the nation drifted toward industrialism, factories were established in these little centers of population. These industries took what native labor they found and acted as a magnet for the surplus labor in the surrounding area. The community grew and new industries and more labor came.

Today the process of industrial and community development is more complex. Experience has proved that, except in the largest cities, there is such a thing in the community as a point of saturation. Increasing the community population is not a simple expedient of inviting new industries to build there. Factories are built where there is a surplus of labor of a kind required by the particular industry. Steel mills are not established in a shoe manufacturing town, and vice versa. The industry must go to the labor supply for the labor surplus in this country is not so large that industry can place its thumb on it any place.

The community must build up its labor supply if it is to develop more industries and if it has a surplus of labor then the community must extend its industries. Community development is a scientific rather than a hit-or-miss process.

HOSTILE

While Washington has been trying to win the good will and friendship of England, it has been gaining the ill will of Argentina. Anti-American propaganda in the South American republic has been waxing in direct ratio to the waning anti-American propaganda in England. It is like an old fire—you patch one hole and the air comes out another.

It was Argentina that declined to participate in a Pan-American arbitration conference, in the trademark conference and the commissions of customs procedure. She has been blocking the next Pan-American sanitation conference. She it was who extended a snub to President Hoover by inquiring whether his preinauguration visit to the Argentine was personal or official. She added another snub by delaying appointment of an ambassador to Washington for a year. She has signed a reciprocity treaty with Great Britain and declined a favored-nation treaty with the United States.

Local politics incites some of this bad behavior. But Washington may be partially to blame. Argentina has shown her resentment of the high tariff against her corn and flaxseed, the embargo on her beef and the restriction requiring Argentine alfalfa to be colored orange red before being admitted to the United States.

EDISON INTERESTED IN NEWSPAPER WORK

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 19.—(INS)—Newspaper work has always interested Thomas A. Edison, the famous inventor, he revealed today while being interviewed. He said that when he was a telegraph operator taking press reports "long hand" he knew the names of all the Senators, had a good idea of most of the important bills before Congress and was generally interested in current events. However, fate willed that he should become an inventor.

Asked if he ever longed for the days when he was a "news butcher" on the Grand Trunk Railroad, he replied: "Oh, no, but I don't regret any of my early day experiences."

Edison said it was "normal" for a young man to experiment with different jobs in his youth, as he had done.

average man use?" he was asked.

"Scarcely any," Edison replied. "The capacity of the human brain is tremendous. The brain is laying idle, for the most part. It is being hardly used at all."

"Have people learned how to take care of themselves—how to live?"

"No, they are just commencing to suspect how to live," said Edison, a smile playing about his eyes.

Asked if he thought human beings existed on other planets, he answered that he did not know, saying: "I keep myself confined pretty closely to earth."

"Very greatly, enormously," he said when asked to what extent he thought a good wife contributed to the success of her husband in life.

"At what age approximately, should a young man marry?"

"Around twenty-one," replied Edison.

"Should all boys strive for a college education?"

"Colleges are changing," said Edison. "They are throwing off the old methods that did not produce well. There is more reality being introduced into the colleges steadily. More technical schools are coming into being. They are getting down to realities and they see the need of a technical education for young men. This is the age of machines."

Edison's attention was called to the advice of a Massachusetts professor who advised students to "be a snob and marry the boss's daughter." Edison's comment was:

"Simply wind; academic, as they call it."

He declared that his idea of a college is the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He pointed out we are "a machine nation and we want engineers." He said when the M. I. of T.

turns out students into the world they "know what to do and how to do it."

"What one thing in your life gave you the greatest thrill?" Edison was asked.

Quite seriously he replied: "I cannot say that I ever had what you call a 'thrill.' By the very nature of my life's work I had to expect to be continually disappointed but to keep on reaching for the solution of the problem. Then when the problem was solved I would go into something else. An inventor has theories. He tries them out, experiments with this, that and the other thing. Some things work, others do not. We cannot see ahead; that is we have to keep experimenting, improving on things as we go along."

And Edison, still experimenting on ways to benefit mankind, turned to his work bench.

(Editor's Note: In the third and concluding article of this series, Mr. Edison will discuss economic conditions in the United States and give his views as to the future.)

People Are Just Beginning To Suspect How to Live
